

At the Hollywood Dominoes Party WE ASKED: WHAT WAS YOUR FAVORITE GAME AS A KID?

Stars journeyed to the exotic-island-themed pre-Oscar gala at Beverly Hills hot spot Bar 210 to support Artists for Peace and Justice. With palm trees to set the scene, white and purple orchids adorning the tables, and drummers on parade, guests gave in to the vacation vibe. That is, until the dominoes began. "I generally don't play because I'm a bad loser," said Rachel Zoe. "I prefer to be a cheerleader and root on my friends." The evening's true champs? The children of Haiti, who benefit from the night's donations. —LINDZI SCHARF

"Jacks. They were the cheapest thing you could buy at the drugstore."
—EVA LONGORIA PARKER

"Chutes and Ladders. I liked to play cards too."
—CAMILLA BELLE in Valentino

"Scrabble. I feel like a boring nerd, but I even have the application on my phone."
—JAMES MARSDEN

"The Game of Life. My family still has game nights together."
—DAVE ANNABLE
"My family's game is Sorry! We had huge, huge battles."
—AARON ECKHART

"Scrabble. I liked that you were rewarded for knowing weird words. You've gotta have your secret weapon!"
—OLIVIA WILDE in Dior dress and Burberry Prorsum coat

"Spoons. It's like Old Maid, a very Southern card game."
—MOLLY SIMS in Diane von Furstenburg

ASHTON KUTCHER and DEMI MOORE (in Victoria Beckham) made a grand arrival in a Maybach, one of the event's sponsors.

"I liked Candy Land, but I loved Monopoly. It was fun to play with fake money!"
—Rachel Zoe in Christian Dior

PIECE IT TOGETHER
Which board games do these belong to?

ANSWERS: 1. Sorry! 2. Monopoly 3. Scrabble 4. Chutes and Ladders 5. Battleship 6. The Game of Life 7. Candy Land 8. Clue